HCPAAA Volunteers Keeping Busy in February

February was a busy month for our members. It started out with staffing a recruiting table at the City Wide Town Hall Meeting featuring Houston Police Chief Charles A. McClelland Jr. and his Command Staff. He was joined by Harris County District Attorney Devon Anderson. The event on Feb. 7, the third in three years, was held at Texas Southern Auditorium. Last year it was at the University of Houston and the first year it was at Lakewood Church. After brief remarks by the Chief and District Attorney, the microphones were opened. There was some two hours of questions. The session began with three demonstrators carrying signs that read: "Don't shoot." They were politely asked to leave the auditorium. During the question and answer period, one heckler shouted out comments while a question was being asked and the chief invited the person to come to the microphone and promised he could go to the front of the line.

That same day, HCPAAA members assisted with a No Refusal Evening at HPD's intox center. During the same week, members assisted the HPD SWAT team during training. The alumni members were hostages or victims.

HCPAAA members Jennifer Einkauf (role played a hostage); Mike Weingart; and Jennifer Deather (also a hostage)
